Dear friends,

Thank you for your generosity. Your gifts of coats, scarves, gloves and mittens are at this very moment keeping men, women, and children warm and dry.

Your donation clearly demonstrates your compassionate heart for others. In stark contrast consider the response from another company: “They probably have coats but choose not to wear them”. When American Pest heard of our coat drive, you asked how, when, and where can we help out.

American Pest continues to be a true leader in community building, a partner who cares for everyone, especially those who can not repay your kindness. Pearl S. Buck, America’s first and only women to receive the Pulitzer Prize for Literature has written that a true measure of the greatness of a society is how they treat their least fortunate. Thank you American Pest for reminding us the greatness of our American Society.

When you go outside, bundled up against the cold winds, I pray you will feel a special inner glow in knowing how your gift of warmth has made life better for others. We wish to thank Matt Nixon for setting the business culture at American Pest and Miranda Sherman for successfully spear-heading the coat drive resulting in American Pest having the honor of being the biggest donator – you guys get the bragging rights.

Clearly, we are the better for the actions of the management and staff at American Pest.

Sincerely,

John and Karen Wyseman
